

Buḫī (Buddhist Ṣūḫī): A Brief Compilation

On a full moon evening in September of my twenty-fifth year, a bufi (Buddhist/Sufi) friend dragged me off to see an old Tibetan master.

“Being in Amusement” is a Zen Buddhist / Sufi way of living your life. Zen and Sufism use humor and laughter in viewing and dealing with the human situation and themselves. As Thomas Moore points out in his book "Dark Nights of the Soul," Zen Buddhists and Sufis can see irony in the most serious situations and their laughter frees their compassion and liberates them from worry.
