What does "chashmal" mean?

I have no idea.

Most people know that חשמל (chashmal), the modern Israeli Hebrew word for electricity, was coined by Yehuda Leib Gordon. His inspiration was Ezekiel 1 and 8 which used this word to explain what the appearance of some kind of brightness was like. What does the word actually mean? The Talmud gives two interpretations (Chagiga 13a-b) עתים חשות עתים ממללות בשעה and חיות אש ממללות שהדיבור יוצא מפי הקב"ה. Both of these are wordplay describing angels of some sort, and their activity. Neither of these are particularly useful as definitions in the sense that unless you've seen חיות אש ממללות then telling us that a brightness looks like them isn't so helpful.
