

Extraterrestrial Invasion Is Eminent

Last month the US government succeeded in seeking the extradition of Gary McKinnon, a 43 yrs. Old Scot who was convicted of hacking over 100 computers belonging to the Pentagon and NASA from 1999 to 2002. This despite after all investigations failed to link him to terrorists or criminal groups. He has been dismissed as an autistic nerd by the media and called a “British nut job” by London Mayor Boris Johnson in the London Daily Telegraph.

His motive was to find out any government involvement in the research for renewable fuel energy. He didn't mean solar energy which is actually used now in experiments by prototype vehicles that are fueled by the sun. It is believed that there could be other forms of energy derived from gasses or elements that has not yet been discovered or known in the atmosphere that can be used as a source and can be converted to fuel.

What has this to do with extraterrestrials? Take note that in order to sustain travel from one galaxy to another there should be an inexhaustible source of energy and these renewable sources if proven to be possible would strengthen the theory of alien visits from another galaxy.

Some astrologers noted that the year 2012 will have an unusual alignment formations of mythical star formations. Main stream scientists couldn't confirm that with telescopic evidence. However if we grant that those astrologers are right then it could mean that our galaxy the milky way could be traveling in opposite direction with some other galaxies and thus if a right route is found any one of those galaxies could shoot their space craft to our path cutting tremendous amount of travel time. It's like using a favorable current in the sea and tossing off a floater to meet an incoming opposite current. So instead of light years of travel it could just be several ordinary or gregorian years before they could reach earth.

Forget about those movies with magical channels in space that transport an alien craft in seconds or those movies where aliens become robots or melt and reform to become animals. Those kinds of movies made alien studies ridiculous and laughable. Extraterrestrial travel is physical and alien beings are tangible not supernatural.

There has been countless “sightings” or “abduction” stories but perhaps 99% of them are fake. The more believable accounts have something in common. Aliens aren't those octopus like figures or invisible predators portrayed in movies. They look similar to the human species with head, shoulders, arms and legs. Two key elements that differ them from humans are that their skulls are disproportionately larger and their abdomens are thinner. Those were all based on description of alleged witnesses but so far no tangible evidence has been found just yet.

It's a very wrong notion that aliens visit earth with the same motive as our own which is exploration. We have sent several signals of communications and made various attempts of establishing contacts with any intelligent extraterrestrial beings. On the other hand most UFOs avoided contacts and speed away when spotted by witnesses. UFO sightings are more credible than sightings of alien beings. Unlike those drunkards and questionable characters reporting alien abductions, UFO sightings are reported by Military Officers, Pilots and other well regarded persons with very credible backgrounds. Just to name one of the more credible reports; Minot Air Force Base, N.D., Oct-1968 (BlueBook case #12548) ...crew of an airborne B-52..... tracked on radar a huge (est. 200ft diameter and 100s of feet long) Unidentified Flying Object.

So why would the UFOs avoid contact? This is most probably because they are threatened by intelligent forms other than their own. They are distrustful of anything that they could not control or subdue. The various visits and sightings throughout the years suggest that they are up to something and are waiting only for the right time. Otherwise they should have initiated contact or at least responded to communications attempts. After all these years they should have been through with the exploration stage. The years 2009-2012 is a perfect time for them to launch a massive transport since galaxy formations enables them to drastically cut travel time.

Unlike in the movies aliens could not mingle with the population or even land in the forests or deserts without being detected and like us they can be harmed by manmade weapons, extreme weather temperatures and biological viruses. They probably enjoy a more advance and sophisticated technological warfare capability but they still need massive amount of troops and equipments to subdue us and to do this they have to make an abrupt and very quick landing. Obviously they cannot do this nearby any major enemy force with advance military technology like USA or Russia.

So what's the possible scenario? Though "Stranger" is only a fictional novel, Col. Leland Farik made a good argument. Try to look at the scene from the Alien perspective. Among others they have the advantage of speed and of traveling distant capability. In other words they have to land somewhere where their enemy could not reach them in time while they can commence their attacks. If you study the world map the perfect landing site would be the Philippine archipelago. On top of its geographical advantage there is also the lack of a major opposition threat within and the surrounding vicinity which is water. Take note that we assume that Aliens may have weapons of mass destruction but not necessarily nuclear since it could leave the place they want to take unusable and unsafe even for themselves. On the other hand Russia and USA would back off from using nuclear weapons against an enemy who is very capable of intercepting and detonating them before it can leave their territory and thereby annihilating them with their own weapons. In fact many of the ICBMs launched will be exploded overhead.

They could enter the atmosphere far away from the US so even considering that there may be some US facilities nearby that could launch a challenge it wouldn't be as big as those that would be launched from main land air bases. The massive size of their landing force will make their objective so obvious and deception and pretense of being friendly would be so irrational. Their only option is to complete a very quick landing in the archipelago in less than 24 hours perhaps and from there they could start attacking the nearest significant threat, China. From their position the invaders could easily intercept any ICBM's or other forms of unmanned weapons launches from the US and Russia.

After quickly subduing China they could then proceed to attack Russia. This will be a one sided battle since both Russia and China have limited capabilities of reaching the alien main HQ in the Philippines while they are pounded by both long distance strikes and ground forces destroying their command centers and communications base. The invading aliens are very capable of doing this considering their advantage in speed, mobility and technology.

With both significant threats Russia and China eliminated, the invaders now can concentrate on the only major threat left, the USA with the support of NATO with Britain and France leading the European countries. It's going to be a long war since the invaders will capitalize on their advantage of distance and speed and launch their strikes from their positions in the Philippines China and Russia while the USA/NATO has far less capability of striking back using only unmanned ICBM's or aircraft carriers and naval fleet. After months of being weakened in a long distance engagement US commanders will then decide to pull back and wait for the invaders to get closer while NATO also pull back to Europe.

Alien invaders would then land in the southern tip in south America and work its way gradually to the north. The USA would be the last theater and NATO would then be throwing everything it has to save the USA. Unlike the movies the bad guys will prevail considering their technological advantage. After USA fall it would be a matter of time that France, Britain and the rest of Europe will be taken. Now what will they do to the surviving humans? Unlike in the movies where they enslave them, the aliens actually want to eliminate any possible resistance from intelligent beings. Their attitude of eluding contacts show that they feel so threatened by any intelligent species that could possess the capability to challenge them. Their mindset is not the same as our own. They will come to conquer and to take what they can take. They are not coming to preach good vs. evil or to explore the earth.

In conspiracy theories it is said that the US operated the likes of area 51 to prepare on how to deal with aliens. But in truth there are no such preparations by any government in USA, Europe or any other country in the world. If and when this hypothesis of an extraterrestrial invasion does materialize the human race will be caught unprepared.
