This angel is feminine in nature. In Greek mythology she was known as Iris, “the golden-winged goddess of the rainbow, and a messenger of the gods. . . . She carried the commands of the gods to men, traveling the path of the rainbow.”<sup>1</sup> She was also known as the Queen of Heaven, and it was said that she was the regular courier for the Queen of the Gods, the keeper of the Mysteries—the archetype that we have already identified as Isis, the Angel of Creative Wisdom. Before we go any further, let’s look at the code words here.
