

קאטארגמה

...  Kataragama Temple Sri Lanka מקדש קאטארגמה סרי לנקה

www.youtube.com/watch?v=6Y816Uphb0s

Jan 7, 2012 - ראוול ושוש בלייכמן - Uploaded by

Kataragama Temple Sri Lanka ... Adopt מקדש קאטארגמה סרי לנקה

A Dog In Sri Lanka Sterilisation Camp Kataragama by ...

מקדש קאטארגמה | למטייל

www.lametayel.co.il/מקדש+קאטארגמה+בסרי+לנקה  Translate this page

Oct 22, 2011 - Kataragama Temple המקדש המרכזי והחשוב ביותר בסרי לנקה וכל מאמין Kataragama Temple עולה אליו לרגל. המקדש נמצא בסמוך לנחל שבו המתפללים מטהרים את עצמם.

מקדש קאטארגמה סרי לנקה  Kataragama Temple Sri Lanka

www.cardflourishes.co.uk/.../6Y816Uphb0s&feature=... - Translate this page

Card Flourish Videos - סרי לנקה - Kataragama Temple Sri Lanka - watch the latest and enjoy. Card Flourish Videos - סרי לנקה ...

טיול מאורגן לסרילנקה, טיולים למזרח, טיולים מאורגנים - עולם אחר another-world.co.il/site/detail/detail/detailDetail.asp?...  Translate this page

יום 7: נוארה אלייה (Nuwara Eliya) – אלה (Ella) – קאטארגמה (Kataragama) - נבקר

במקדש קאטארגמה שם פי מסורת ההינדו היה קאטארגמה אל המלחמה ההינדואי- סקנדה- ...

טיול מאורגן לסרי לנקה 11 ימים - עולם אחר www.another-world.co.il/.../טיול-מאורגן-לסרי-לנקה-11-ימי/  Translate this page

אתר המלון: <http://www.johnkeellshotels.com/YalaVillage.htm> יום 8: יאללה (Yala) –

קאטארגמה (Kataragama) – גול (Galle) – קאלוטרה (Kalutara) - לאחר ארוחת הבוקר נצא ...

פורום המזרח הרחוק - ארכיון - תפוז אנשים

www.tapuz.co.il/forums2008/archive.aspx?...  Translate this page Tapuz

40 posts

מקדש קאטארגמה (Kataragama) פארק לאומי יאללה (Yala) חופי אונהוואטונה (Unawatuna) גאלה

(Galle): המבצר ההולנדי (Dutch fort) ומוזיאון השלטון ההולנדי (Dutch period) ...

רטון - מרוץ הוד השרון Slidex 2011 | Hod Hasharon Race

www.slidex.co.il/.../%202011%20הוד%20השרון%20מרוץ...  Translate this page

Derrick (D.J.) Sharp's Hod Hasharon & Rosh Hayin Highlights 2.mpg - Joga Bonito Hod

Hasharon - סרי לנקה - מקדש קאטארגמה Kataragama Temple Sri Lanka.

Kataragama is a fountain of mercy and boundless life for those who surrender to Him, whose hearts have been softened through long suffering, dukkha.

His devotees know that he will come again, because he has promised to come back. He is the guardian angel of India and Sri Lanka. There are other such archangels as well.

http://kataragama.org/sages/murugan-shaitan_showdown.htm

Whatever the derivation you may give to the word, Kataragama, the Tamil form of the word Kathirgamam, is not without its meaning; Kathir, a pure Tamil word, stands for two things, one is the sun and the other an ear of corn. Kathirgamam is the town of the burning sun or one smiling with rich paddy fields. Ruhuna Rata, of which Kathirgamam on the Menika Ganga was only a small spot, was indeed a land of eternal sunshine, with rain for only two months of the year during the North-east monsoon. The climate is so dry that, given an abundant supply of water for irrigation purposes, you can raise all manner of crops. It is a land flowing not only with milk and honey, but also with curd and ghee and all sorts of luscious fruits and vegetables, that are unknown in other areas, where the climate is less sunny and more wet. You have seen how in your house in Colombo you tried to raise a few vegetables like pumpkins and snake gourds and fruits like pomegranates, and how you miserably failed, owing to all sorts of diseases and the attacks of insects and of Kalutara snails.

http://sangam.org/2011/08/Aryan_Theory.php?uid=4437

Kataragama

Contents

1 Kataragama deviyo	1
1.1 See also	1
1.2 References	1
1.3 External links	1
2 Kataragama	2
2.1 History	2
2.1.1 Early history	2
2.1.2 Historic period	2
2.2 Kataragama temple	3
2.2.1 Temple of Syncretism	3
2.2.2 Hindu Katirkamam	3
2.2.3 Buddhist Kataragama	3
2.2.4 Pre-Hindu and Buddhist origins	4
2.3 Education	4
2.4 Population	4
2.5 Transport	4
2.6 See also	5
2.7 References	5
2.8 External links	5
3 Kataragama temple	6
3.1 History	6
3.1.1 Origin theories	6
3.1.2 Literary evidence	7
3.1.3 Archeological evidence	7
3.1.4 Role of Kalyangiri Swamy	7

3.2	Legends	7
3.2.1	Hindu legends	7
3.2.2	Buddhist legends	8
3.2.3	Muslim legends	8
3.2.4	Vedda legends	9
3.3	Temple layout	9
3.4	Murukan and Kataragama deviyo cults	10
3.4.1	Murukan cult	10
3.4.2	Katargamadevio cult	10
3.5	Festivals	11
3.6	Hindu and Buddhist conflicts	11
3.7	Notes	12
3.8	Cited literature	13
3.9	See also	13
3.10	External links	14
3.11	Text and image sources, contributors, and licenses	15
3.11.1	Text	15
3.11.2	Images	15
3.11.3	Content license	16

Chapter 1

Kataragama deviyo

For other uses, see Kataragama (disambiguation).

Kataragama deviyo (also called: Skanda Kumara, Sinhala: කතරගම දෙවියෝ) is a guardian deity of Sri Lanka. Sinhalese Buddhists believe him also as a protector of the Buddhasasana in the country. A major temple dedicated to 'God Kataragama', which is known as Ruhunu Maha Kataragama devalaya is situated in the town of Kataragama in Southeastern Sri Lanka. He is identified with Skanda of the Hindu tradition, who is called as Murugan or Kartikeya in the Tamil language. There is also an identical guardian deity of Buddhism, known as Skanda in the Mahayana Buddhism. Theosophists identify Kataragama deviyo as Sanat Kumara, the king or regent of the world and the lord of humanity.^[1]

A painting of Kataragama deviyo

1.1 See also

- Kataragama devalaya
- Kataragama

1.2 References

[1] Pinkham, Mark Amaru (July–August 2007). "The Return of the King of the World". Atlantis Rising. Retrieved 12 June 2014.

- Bastin, Rohan (December 2002). The Domain of Constant Excess: Plural Worship at the Munnesvaram Temples in Sri Lanka. Berghahn Books. ISBN 1-57181-252-0.

1.3 External links

- Kataragama.org the Kataragama-Skanda website

Chapter 2

Kataragama

For other uses, see Kataragama (disambiguation).

Kataragama (Sinhala: කතරගම (katharagama), Tamil: கதிர்காமம் (katirkāmam)) is a pilgrimage town sacred to Buddhist, Hindu, Muslim and indigenous Vedda people of Sri Lanka. People from South India also come there to worship. The town has the Ruhunu Maha Kataragama devalaya, a shrine dedicated to Skanda-Murukan also known as Kataragamadevio. Kataragama is in the Monaragala District of Uva province, Sri Lanka. It is 228 km ESE of Colombo, the capital of Sri Lanka. Although Kataragama was a small village in medieval times, today it is a fast-developing township surrounded by jungle in the southeastern region of Sri Lanka. It houses the ancient Kiri Vehera Buddhist stupa. The town has a venerable history dating back to the last centuries BCE. It was the seat of government of many Sinhalese kings during the days of Rohana kingdom. Since the 1950s the city has undergone many improvements with successive governments investing in public transportation, medical facilities, and business development and hotel services. It adjoins the popular Yala National Park.

2.1 History

2.1.1 Early history

The general vicinity of Kataragama has yielded evidence of human habitation at least 125,000 years ago. It has also yielded evidence of Mesolithic and Neolithic habitations.^[1]

2.1.2 Historic period

During the historic period, the general area was characterized by small reservoirs for water conservation and associated paddy cultivation. Kataragama village is first mentioned in the historical annals known as Mahavamsa written in the 5th century CE. It mentions a town named Kajjaragama from which important dignitaries came to receive the sacred Bo sapling sent from Asoka's Mauryan Empire in 288 BCE.

It functioned as the capital of number of kings of the Ruhuna kingdom. It provided refuge to many kings from the north when the north was invaded by South Indian kingdoms. It is believed that the area was abandoned around the 13th century.^[1]

Based on archeological evidence found, it is believed that the Kiri Vehera was either renovated to build during the first century BCE. There are number of others inscriptions and ruins. By the 16th century the Kataragamadevio shrine at Kataragama had become synonymous with Skanda-Kumara who was a guardian deity of Sinhala Buddhism.^[2] The town was popular as a place of pilgrimage for Hindus from India and Sri Lanka by the 15th century. The popularity of the deity at the Kataragama temple was recorded by the Pali chronicles of Thailand such as Jinkalmali in the 16th century. There are Buddhist and Hindu legends that attribute supernatural events to the locality.^[2] Scholars such as Paul Younger and Heinz Bechert speculate that rituals practiced by the native priests of Kataragama temple betray Vedda ideals of propitiation. Hence they believe the area was of Vedda veneration that was taken over by the Buddhist and Hindus in the medieval period.^[3]

2.2 Kataragama temple

Main article: Kataragama temple

2.2.1 Temple of Syncretism

Kataragama is a multi-religious sacred town as it contains an Islamic Mosque within its temple complex as well.

In spite of the differences of caste and creed, many Sri Lankans show great reverence to God Kataragama. They honor him as a very powerful deity and beg divine help to overcome their personal problems or for success in business enterprises, etc., with the fervent hope that their requests will be granted. They believe that God Kataragama exists and is vested with extraordinary power to assist those who appeal to him with faith and devotion in times of distress or calamity.

2.2.2 Hindu Katirkamam

Interior of the Maha Devale, the Yantra is kept behind a curtain that figures Murukan with his two wives Tamil Hindus of Sri Lanka and South India refer to the place as Katirkamam. Lord Katirkaman is associated with Skanda-Murukan. Saivite Hindus of South India call him Subrahmanya as well. He is known as Kandasamy, Katiradeva, Katiravel, Kartikeya, and Tarakajith. Some of these names are derived from the root katir from Katirkamam. “Katir” means formless light. The Deity is depicted with six faces and twelve hands or one face and four hands. Out of love for Lord Murugan and to mitigate bad karma, bhaktars pierce their cheeks and tongues with vels, pull large chariots carrying murthi of Murugan with large hooks pierced through the skin of their backs. This practice is known as kavadi. Murugan’s vahana or vehicle is Mayil, the peacock.

There is a related shrine called Sella Katirkamam dedicated to the beloved elephant-faced God Ganesha nearby, who is known as Lord Murugan’s elder brother. The local Manik Ganga or Manika Gangai (River of Gems) is a place of ablution where a sacred bath is taken to purify oneself. Local residents declare that one can be healed of ailments by bathing in it from its high gem content and the medicinal properties of the roots of trees that line the river through the jungle.

2.2.3 Buddhist Kataragama

Many Sinhala Buddhists of Sri Lanka believe that Kataragama deviyo is a guardian deity of Buddhism and he is the presiding deity of Kataragama temple. Kataragama is one of the 16 principal places of Buddhist pilgrimage to be visited in Sri Lanka. According to the chronicle of Sri Lankan history, the Mahawamsa, when the Bo sapling of Bodhi Tree, under which Gotama Buddha attained enlightenment in North India was brought to the city of Anuradhapura 2,300 years ago, the warriors or Kshatriyas from Kataragama were present on the occasion to pay homage and respect.

Kiri Vehera Dagoba at Night

The Bo tree behind the Kataragama temple is one of the eight saplings (Ashta Phala Ruhu Bodhi) of Sri Maha Bodhiya in Anuradapura, Sri Lanka. This tree was planted in the 3rd century BC.^[4]

The Buddhist Kiri Vehera Dagoba which stands in close to the Kataragama devalaya was built by the King Mahasena. According to the legend, Lord Buddha, on his third and the last visit to Sri Lanka, was believed to have met King Mahasena, who ruled over the Kataragama area in 580 BC. It is said that King Mahasena met Lord Buddha and listened to his discourse. As a token of gratitude, the Dagoba was built on that exact spot where it now stands. Thus the local Sinhalese Buddhists believe that Kataragama was sanctified by Lord Buddha.

2.2.4 Pre-Hindu and Buddhist origins

The deity at Kataragama is indigenous and long-celebrated in Sri Lankan lore and legend, and originally resides on the top of mountain called Wædahiti Kanda (or hill of the indigenous Vedda people) just outside of the Kataragama town. Since ancient times an inseparable connection between the Kataragama God and his domain has existed. At one time the local deity was identified with God Saman, a guardian deity of Buddhism and Sri Lanka.

As was the Sinhalese tradition, local ancestors, rulers and kings, who did a great service to the country or community were ordained as deities. According to the legendary history, God Saman was an ancient ruler of the Deva people in the Sabaragamuwa area of Sri Lanka. Therefore, some believe that King Mahasena, who built Kiri Vehera in Kataragama later came to be worshiped as God Kataragama.

Till today the indigenous Vedda people come to venerate at the temple complex from their forest abodes. As a link to the Vedda past, the temple holds its annual festival that celebrates the God's courtship and marriage to a Vedda princess in July to August.

2.3 Education

There are local government schools that provide education to primary, secondary and higher secondary students in the Sinhala medium.

2.4 Population

Since its abandonment, during the 1800s the population of the village did not exceed over a few dozen. Since the 1950s the town has experienced an increase in population. Most of the residents are Sinhalese apart from residents of nearby Tanjanagaram who are Sri Lankan Tamils. During July and August the population swells to a few hundred thousand due to the annual festival held in the honor of the deity.

Kataragama has a total population of over 20,000 (2010).^[5]

Source: Statistical Information of Kataragama Divisional Secretariat

2.5 Transport

Colombo-Kataragama Main Road

Most of the many thousands who visit Kataragama travel by vehicles. Even today, despite the lure of modern transport, hundreds of dedicated pilgrims stick to the ancient practice of journeying to Kataragama on foot.^[6]

In 1992, it was proposed to extend the railway from Matara to Kataragama and beyond. The Kataragama railway extension is being constructed under a three-phase accelerated development program. The first phase has begun and will consist of the 27 km stretch from Matara to Beliatta costing 60 million rupees; construction has already commenced on the bridge over the Nilwala River by the State Engineering Corporation. The entire project is expected to take six years to complete and will cost around 3 billion rupees. The project is funded by the Chinese government and it is expected to be completed by 2015.^[7]

2.6 See also

- Kartikay
- Kartikkeya

2.7 References

- [1] Jayaratne, D.K. (May 5, 2009). "Rescue Archeology of Ruhuna, Veheralgala project.". Peradeniya University. Retrieved 5 October 2010.
- [2] Pathmanathan, S (September 1999). "The guardian deities of Sri Lanka: Skanda-Murgan and Kataragama". The Journal of the Institute of Asian Studies (Institute of Asian Studies).
- [3] Bechert, Heinz (1970). "Skandakumara and Kataragama: An Aspect of the Relation of Hinduism and Buddhism in Sri Lanka". Proceedings of the Third International Tamil Conference Seminar (Paris: International Association of Tamil Research).
- [4] "Kataragama". Travel Sri Lanka. Retrieved June 11, 2010.
- [5] "Kataragama Divisional Secretariat". Government of Sri Lanka. Retrieved 6 October 2010.
- [6] "On Foot by Faith to Kataragama". The Sunday Leader.
- [7] "Chinese company to get 600 mln USD railway project in Sri Lanka". Global Times, China. Retrieved 4 April 2014.

2.8 External links

- Kataragama.org The Kataragama-Skanda website
- Kataragama Devalaya (Temple) website
- MSN Map

Coordinates: 06°25′00″N 81°20′00″E﻿ / ﻿6.41667°N 81.33333°E﻿ /

Chapter 3

Kataragama temple

For other uses, see Kataragama (disambiguation).

Kataragamam temple (Sinhala: කතරගම, Tamil: கதிர்காமம் Katirkāmam) in Kataragama, Sri Lanka, is a Hindu and Buddhist temple complex dedicated to Skanda-Murukan also known as Kataragama deviyo. It is one of the few religious sites in Sri Lanka that is venerated by the majority Sinhala Buddhists, Hindu minority Sri Lankan Tamil people, Sri Lankan Moors and the Vedda people.^[3] It is a collection of modest shrines, of which the one dedicated to Skanda-Murukan, also known as Kataragama deviyo, is the most important. For most of the past millennia, it was a jungle shrine very difficult to access; today it is accessible by an all-weather road. Almost all the shrines— and the nearby Kiri Vehera— are managed by Buddhists, apart from shrines dedicated to Teyvānai and Shiva and the Muslim mosque.

Up until the 1940s a majority of the pilgrims were Tamil Hindus from Sri Lanka and South India who undertook an arduous padayatra or “pilgrimage on foot”. Since then most pilgrims tend to be Sinhala Buddhists and the cult of Kataragama deviyo has become the most popular amongst the Sinhalese people.

A number of legends and myths are associated with the deity and the location, differing by religion, ethnic affiliation and time. These legends are changing with the deities’ burgeoning popularity with Buddhists, as the Buddhist ritual specialists and clergy try to accommodate the deity within Buddhist ideals of nontheism. With the change in devotees, the mode of worship and festivals has changed from that of Hindu orientation to one that accommodates Buddhist rituals and theology. It is difficult to reconstruct the factual history of the place and the reason for its popularity amongst Sri Lankans and Indians based on legends and available archeological and literary evidence alone, although the place seems to have a venerable history. The lack of clear historic records and resultant legends and myths fuel the conflict between Buddhists and Hindus as to the ownership and the mode of worship at Kataragama.^[4]

The priests of the temple are known as Kapuralas and are believed to be descended from Vedda people. Veddas, too, have a claim on the temple, a nearby mountain peak and locality through a number of legends. There is a Muslim mosque and a few tombs of Muslim pious men buried nearby. The temple complex is also connected to other similar temples in the Eastern Province dedicated to Murugan which are along the path of pilgrimage from Jaffna in the north to Kataragama in the south of the island; Arunagirinathar traversed this pilgrimage route in the 1400s.^[5] The vicinity of the temple complex is used for secretive practices of sorcery and cursing peculiar to Sri Lanka. The entire temple complex was declared a holy place by the government of Sri Lanka in the 1950s; since then political leaders have contributed for its maintenance and upkeep.

3.1 History

3.1.1 Origin theories

There are number of theories as to the origin of the shrine. According to Heinz Bechert^[6] and Paul Younger,^[7] the mode of veneration and rituals connected with Kataragama deviyo is a survival of indigenous Vedda mode of veneration that preceded the arrival of Buddhist and Indo-Aryan cultural influences from North India in Sri Lanka in the last centuries BCE, although Hindus, Buddhists and even Muslims have tried to co-opt the deity, rituals and the shrine. But according to S. Pathmanathan,^[1] the original Kataragama shrine was established as an adjunct guardian deity shrine to Skanda-Kumara within a Buddhist temple complex. This particular shrine then became idealized as the very spot where Valli met Murukan amongst local Tamils and Sinhalese, and Kataragama deviyo subsumed the identity of Skanda-Kumara and became a deity on his own right with rituals and pilgrimage. According to Pathmanathan, it happened after the 13th century CE when Murukan became popular amongst Tamils and before the 15th century CE when the poet Arunagirinathar identified the very location as a sacred spot.^[1]

3.1.2 Literary evidence

The first literary mention of Kataragama in a context of a sacred place to Skanda-Murukan is in its Tamil form Kathirkamam in the 15th-century devotional poems of Arunagirinathar. Tradition claims that he visited the forest shrine when he composed the poems. According to his poems, the deity dwelt on top of a mountain.^[1] The first mention of Kataragama deviyo in the form Khattugama, as a guardian deity of Sri Lanka and its Buddhist relics, was in the Pali chronicle of Jinakalamali written during the 16th century in what is today Thailand.^{[8][9]} (see Jatukham Rammathep a popular Thai amulet, based on Khattugama, a deity from Sri Lanka) Kataragama village is first mentioned in the historical annals known as Mahavamsa written down in the 5th century CE. It mentions a town named Kajjaragama from which important dignitaries came to receive the sacred Bo sapling sent from Asoka's Mauryan Empire on 288 BCE.^[10] (According to Ponnambalam Arunachalam Kajjaragama is derived from Kārttikeya Grāma ("City of Kartikeya extquotedbl)^[11] shortened to Kajara-gama^[11])

3.1.3 Archeological evidence

The vicinity of the temple has number of ancient ruins and inscriptions. Based on dated inscriptions found, the nearby Kiri Vehera is believed to be have been built or renovated around the 1st century BCE.^[12] There is an inscription, a votive offering to the Mangala Mahacetiya, apparently the former name of Kiri Vehera on the orders of one Mahadathika Mahanaga, a son of king Tiritara who ruled in 447 CE.^[13] There is also an inscription of Dapula I dated to the 7th century CE who built a sanctuary for Buddhist monks, but the inscription does not mention Kataragama by name. Nearby Tissamaharama was a trading town of antiquity by the 2nd century BCE, as indicated by Prakrit and Tamil Brahmi legends in coins and potsherds unearthed on the site.^[14] The region was part of the ancient kingdom of Ruhuna which played an important role in the political history of the island.^[7]

3.1.4 Role of Kalyangiri Swamy

The medieval phase of the history of the shrine began with the arrival of one Kalyanagiri Swamy from North India sometimes during the 16th or 17th century.^[15] He identified the very spot of the shrines and their mythic associations with characters and events as expounded in Skanda Purana.^[15] Following his re-establishment of the forest shrine, it again became a place of pilgrimage for Indian and Sri Lankan Hindus. The shrine also attracted local Sinhala Buddhist devotees.^[15] The caretakers of the shrines were people of the forest who were of indigenous Vedda or mixed Vedda and Sinhalese lineages. The shrines popularity increased with the veneration of the place by the kings of the Kandyan kingdom, the last indigenous kingdom before colonial occupation of the island. When Indian indentured workers were brought in after the British occupation in 1815, they too began to participate in the pilgrimage in droves,^[16] thus the popularity of the shrine increased amongst all sections of the people.^[17]

3.2 Legends

3.2.1 Hindu legends

According to Hindus and some Buddhist texts, the main shrine is dedicated to Kartikeya (also known as Murukan in Tamil sources). Kartikeya, also known as Kumara, Skanda, Saravanabhava, Visakha or Mahasena, is a god of war. Rulers such as Kushanas and Yaudheyas had his likeness minted in coins that they issued in the last centuries BCE. The deity's popularity has waned in North India but has survived in South India. In South India, he became known as Subrahmaniya and was eventually fused with another local god of war known as Murukan among Tamils.^[18] Murukan is known independently from Cankam literature dated from 2nd century BCE to 6th century CE.^[19] Along the way number of legends were woven about the deity's birth, accomplishments, and marriages including one to a tribal princess known amongst Tamil and Sinhalese sources as Valli. Skanda Purana written in Sanskrit in the 7th or 8th century CE is the primary corpus of all literature about him.^[20] A Tamil rendition of Skanda Purana, known as Kandha Puranam written in the 14th century CE, also expands on legends of Valli meeting Murukan. Kandha Puranam plays an important role amongst Sri Lankan Tamils than Tamils from India, who hardly know it.^[21]

In Sri Lanka the Sinhala Buddhists also worshiped Kartikeya as Kumaradevio or Skanda-Kumara since at least the 4th century CE if not earlier.^[11] Skanda-Kumara was known as one of the guardian deities until the 14th century, invoked to protect the island; they are accommodated within the non-theistic Buddhist religion.^[11] During the 11th and 12th century CE, the worship of Skanda-Kumara was documented even among the royal family.^[11] At some point in the past Skanda-Kumara was identified with the deity in Kataragama shrine, also known as Kataragama deviyo and Kataragama deviyo, became one of the guardian deities of Sri Lanka.^[11] Numerous legends have sprung about Kataragama deviyo, some of which try to find an independent origin for Katargamadevio from the Hindu roots of Skanda-Kumara.^[22]

3.2.2 Buddhist legends

One of the Sinhala legends tells that when Skanda-Kumara moved to Sri Lanka, he asked for refuge from Tamils. The Tamils refused, and he came to live with the Sinhalese in Kataragama. As a penance for their refusal, the deity forced Tamils to indulge in body piercing and fire walking in his annual festival.^[23] This legend tries to explain the location of the shrine as well as the traditional patterns of worship by Tamils. Another Sinhala legends attests that Kataragama deviyo was the deity worshiped by Dutthagamini in the first century BCE, before his war with Elara, and that Dutugamunu had the shrine erected to Skanda-Kumara at Kataragama after his victory.^[12] This legend has no corroboration in Mahavamsa, the historic annals about Dutugamunu.^[11] Another Sinhala legend makes Kataragama deviyo a deification of a Tamil spy sent by Elara to live amongst the Sinhalese or a Tamil juggler who made the locals deify him after his death.^{[24][25]} Yet another legend says that Kataragama deviyo is a deification of the legendary king Mahasena, who is born as a Bodhisattva or Buddha in waiting.^[26] Anthropologists Richard Gombrich and Gananath Obeyesekere were able to identify new strands of these legends and the originators of these legends since the 1970s, with the burgeoning popularity of the shrine and its deity amongst the Sinhala Buddhists.^[27]

According to the practice of cursing and sorcery peculiar to Sinhala Buddhists, Kataragama deviyo has his dark side represented by Getabaru and Kadavara.^[28] The current Getabaru shrine is located in an isolated place near Morawaka. The shrine for Kadavara is in the town of Kataragama.^[28] His power to curse is carried out in secret outside the Main Kataragama deviyo shrine at a place at the Menik ganga river, where he receives animal sacrifices.^[28] Katagama devio is also directly invoked in sorcery practices.^[29]

3.2.3 Muslim legends

People of Coast Vedita descent taking a pilgrimage on foot (Pada Yatra) from the town of Muttur in the east of Sri Lanka to the temple

Muslim or Islamic legends about Kataragama are relatively newer. According Muslims Kataragama is referred to as al-Khidr or land of Khidr.^[30] A number of Muslim pious and holy men seems to have migrated from India and settled down in the vicinity. The earliest known one is one Hayathu, whose simple residence became the mosque. Another one called Karima Nabi is supposed to have discovered a source of water that when drunk provides immortality.^[31] Historic figures such as Jabbar Ali Sha (died 1872) and Meer Syed Mohhamed Alisha Bawa (died 1945) also have mausoleums built over their tombs.^[32]

3.2.4 Vedda legends

The Veddas who have kept out of the mainstream culture of Sri Lanka do not subscribe to Kataragama deviyo as their deity. Unassimilated Veddas consider Kande Yakka or Gale Yakka (Lord of the Rock) as their primary deity to be propitiated before hunts. They propitiate the deity by building a shrine made out of thatched leaves with a lance or arrow planted in the middle of the structure. They dance around the shrine with the shaman becoming possessed with the spirits of the dead ancestors who guide the hunting party in techniques and places to go hunt. Anthropologist Charles Gabriel Seligman felt that the Kataragama deviyo cult has taken on some aspects of the Kande Yakka rituals and traditions.^[33] A clan of Veddas who lived near to the shrine was known as Kovil Vanam (Temple precincts). As a clan they are extinct but were to be found in the eastern province during the 19th century. Local Veddas believed that the nearby mountain peak of Vaedihiiti Kande (The Mountain of Veddas) was the abode of the deity. The deity after coming over the shore married a local Vedda woman named Valli, a daughter of a Vedda chief and resided in the mountain.^[34] Eventually he was coaxed into settling down at the current location.^[33]

3.3 Temple layout

Entrance of the temple complex

Almost all the shrines are nondescript small rectangular buildings without any ornamentation. There is no representative of deities adorning the outside of the buildings. This is in contrast to any other Hindu temple in Sri Lanka or India. Almost all shrines are built of stone except that one dedicated to Valli which shows timber construction. They have been left as originally constructed and there are not any plans to improve upon them, because people are reluctant to tamper with the original shrine complex.^[35]

Path towards the Kiri Vehera, on the temple complex

The most important one is known as Maha Devale or Maha Kovil and is dedicated to Skanda-Murugan known amongst the Sinhalese as Kataragama deviyo. It does not have a statue of the deity; instead it holds a Yantra, a spiritual drawing of the deity's power.^[36] Of all the shrines in the complex, it is the largest and the first that all pilgrims come to visit. Although it does not have a representation of the deity, kept in an adjoining room is a statue of Shiva also known amongst Sinhalese as Karanduva. Within it there is a clay arm chair known as Kalana Mandima that supposedly belonged to Kalyanagiri Swamy. It is covered by a leopard's skin and on it has all the ceremonial instruments. To the left of the main shrine lies a smaller shrine dedicated to Hindu god Ganesha who is known as Ganapatidevio amongst Sinhalese. Tamils refer to him as the Manica Pillaiyar as well. It too is a small rectangular building without any decoration. To the left of Ganesha shrine stands the Vishnu Devale the shrine dedicated to Vishnu within which there is also a Buddha image. Behind this is a large Bo tree that tradition holds as sprung from the sapling of the original Bo tree in Anuradhapura, hence is very much held in high esteem by the visiting Buddhists.^[35]

Attached to the western wall of the shrine complex are shrines dedicated Kali, Pattini, Managaradevio, Dedimunda and Suniyam.^[10] Outside the temple yard and beyond the northern gate lies the shrine to Teyvanai, the consort of Murugan. Teyvanai shrine is managed by the Sankara Mutt from Sringeri in Karnataka, India. The shrine dedicated to Valli, the consort of the main deity lies in front of the mosque. Close to the Valli shrine is a Kadamba tree that is sacred to Murugan. Within the mosque are number of tombs of Muslim holy men. There is also a separate shrine dedicated to the tomb of Kalayangiri swamy known amongst Tamils as Mutuligaswamy kovil. It is also known as the Siva Devale.^{[17][35]}

3.4 Murukan and Kataragama deviyo cults

The interior of the Maha Devale. The Yantra is kept behind a curtain that figures Murukan with his two wives

Buddhism doesn't encourage beliefs in gods or their veneration and yet Buddhists in Sri Lanka make an annual pilgrimage to Kataragama.^[23] The deity has attained the position of national god amongst the Sinhalese. This reflects the similar position held by Murukan amongst Tamils.^[37]

3.4.1 Murukan cult

Murukan is known from Sangam Tamil literature.^[38] The earliest reference to Murukan was as a god who was propitiated to help in good hunting. He was the primary god of hunter gatherer people from the mountainous region of Southern Tamil Nadu, very much like the Veddas of Sri Lanka. With the advancement of settled agriculture, Murukan became identified with the tribal chieftains as a god of war, becoming popular among all segments of the society. He was worshiped symbolically as lance and trees such as Kadamba (Anthocephalus cadamba) were considered to be sacred to him. Birds such as peacock or rooster were also identified with the deity. Velans were a special class of priests identified with his worship.^[39] With advent of North Indian traditions to South with dynasties such as Pallavas and Kadambas, Murukan was infused with the aspects of Kartikeya or Skanda, a god of war from North India.^[40] All legends that were attributed to Kartikeya were also attributed to Murukan. The syncretic deity has six major temples in Tamil Nadu and countless many other smaller temples.^[41] Legends developed that bound the worship of syncretic Skanda-Murukan to Tamil Nadu as a god of Tamils. It included his marriage of Valli from Tondaimandalam.

3.4.2 Katargamadevio cult

Legends in Sri Lanka claimed that Valli was a daughter of a Vedda chief from Kataragama in the south of the island. The town of Kalutara, known in some sources as Velapura, became associated with Murukan worship as well.^[42] The cult of Murukan was grafted onto the worship of Skanda-Kumara that was prevalent in Sri Lanka. Amongst the Sinhalese he became known as the god of Kataragama village, thus Kataragamdevio. Shrines of Kataragamadevio are found in almost all Sinhala Buddhist villages and towns. He is recognized as one of the guardian deities. Worshipers take an arduous pilgrimage on foot through jungles to fulfill their vows to the deity. The pilgrimage included both Tamils from India and Sri Lanka as well as Sinhalese. Number of temples mostly in the east coast of Sri Lanka became identified with Kataragama temple and synchronized their festivals based on the arrival of pilgrims all the way from the north of the island. These include temples in Verugal, Mandur, Tirukovil and Okanda.^[43] In the interior of the island temples such as Embekke were built in the 15 to 17 the century CE to propitiate the Murukan aspect of

Kataragamdevio by the Sinhalese elite.^[44]

Since the 1950s the cult of Kataragama has taken a nationalistic tone amongst the Sinhalese people. People visit the shrine year long, and during the annual festival it looks like a carnival.^[30] People get into trance and indulge in ecstatic rituals formerly associated with Hindus such as fire walking, Kavadi and even body piercing or hook swinging.^[16] These ecstatic rituals have carried through the island and are widely practiced. Prominent Sinhalese politicians such as Dudley Senanayake and Ranasinghe Premadasa have associated with the temple upkeep by building, renovation and cleaning projects.^[45]

Kiri Vehera also known as Mangala Mahacetiya

3.5 Festivals

The festivals and daily rituals do not adhere to standard Hindu Agamic or Buddhist rituals. It follows what Paul Younger calls as ancient Vedda traditions of worship. Although since the medieval period Hindus, Buddhists and even Muslims have tried to co-opt the temple, deity and its worship as their own, the rituals maintained by the native priests are still intact.^[10] The main festival known in Sinhalese as Esela Perehera. It is celebrated during the months of July and August. About 45 days before the festival begins, the priests go into the forest and find two forked branches of a sacred tree. The branches are then immersed in the local river and kept at the shrines dedicated to Kataragama deviyo and Vali. When the main festival begins, the Yantra representing the deity is retrieved from its storage location, paraded through a street on top of an elephant, and carried to the Valli shrine. After two hours it is returned. On the last day of the festival the Yantra is left overnight at the Valli shrine and brought back to the main shrine. The priests conduct the rituals in silence, covering their mouths with white cloth. Associated with the main festival is fire walking arranged by a master of the ritual. Hundreds of devotees participate in fire walking, yet others participate in ecstatic dance forms called Kavadi and body piercing. Many of the pilgrims exhibit signs of being possessed.^{[46][47]}

3.6 Hindu and Buddhist conflicts

Sri Lanka has had a history of conflict between its minority Hindu Tamils and majority Buddhists since its political independence from Great Britain in 1948. Paul

Wirz in the 1930s wrote about tensions between Hindus and Buddhists regarding the ownership and mode of ritual practice in Kataragama.^[48] For the past millennia the majority of the pilgrims were Hindus from Sri Lanka and South India who undertook an arduous pilgrimage on foot.^[49] By the 1940 roads were constructed and more and more Sinhala Buddhists began to take the pilgrimage.^{[30][50]} This increased the tensions between the local Hindus and Buddhists about the ownership and type of rituals to be used.^{[48][51]} The government interceded on behalf of the Buddhists and enabled the complete takeover of the temple complex and in effect the shrines have become an adjunct to the Buddhist Kiri Vehera.^{[28][52]} Protests occurred upon this development in the 1940s, particularly when restrictions were placed on Tamil worship at the shrine.^{[53][54]}

Typical Tamil Hindu rituals at Kataragama such as fire walking, Kavadi dance and body piercing have been taken over by the Buddhists and have been spread to the rest of the island.^{[16][28]} The Buddhist takeover of the temple and its rituals has profoundly affected the rationale nature of austere Theravada Buddhism practiced in Sri Lanka to that of the personal Bhakti veneration of deities found amongst the Hindus of Sri Lanka and South India. The loss of Hindu influence within the temple complex has negatively affected the Sri Lankan Tamil Hindu society.^[55] According to Paul Younger, the Buddhist takeover was precipitated by the overwhelming participation of Buddhists in what are essentially Hindu rituals that worried the Buddhist establishment. There is a strong political and religious pressure to further modify the temple rituals to conform within an orthodox Theravada Buddhist world view.^{[17][56]}

3.7 Notes

- [1] Pathmanathan, S (September 1999). “The guardian deities of Sri Lanka:Skanda-Murgan and Kataragama”. The journal of the institute of Asian studies (The institute of Asian studies).
- [2] Peiris, Kamalika (31 July 2009). “Ancient and medieval Hindu temples in Sri Lanka”. Retrieved 6 October 2010.
- [3] Younger 2001, p. 39
- [4] Wirz 1966, p. 16
- [5] See map.
- [6] Bechert 1970, pp. 199–200
- [7] Younger 2001, p. 26
- [8] Wright, Michael (May 15, 2007). “The facts behind the Jatukam Ramathep talisman nonsense”. The Nation (The Buddhist Channel). Retrieved 13 September 2010.
- [9] Reynolds 2006, p. 146
- [10] Younger 2001, p. 27
- [11] Sir Ponnambalam Arunachalam The Worship of Muruka or Skanda (The Kataragama God) First published in the Journal of the Ceylon Branch of the Royal Asiatic Society, Vol. XXIX, No. 77, 1924.
- [12] Wirz 1966, p. 17
- [13] Paranavithana 1933, pp. 221–225
- [14] Mahathevan, Iravatham (June 24, 2010). “An epigraphic perspective on the antiquity of Tamil”. The Hindu (The Hindu Group). Retrieved 13 September 2010.
- [15] Wirz 1966, pp. 8–9
- [16] Younger 2001, p. 35
- [17] Younger 2001, p. 33
- [18] Womak 2005, p. 126
- [19] Clothey & Ramanujan 1978, pp. 23–35
- [20] Clothey & Ramanujan 1978, p. 224
- [21] Gupta 2010, p. 167
- [22] Gombrich & Obeyesekere 1999, p. xii
- [23] Wanasundera 2004, p. 94
- [24] Wirz 1966, p. 19
- [25] Witane, Godwin (2001). “Kataragama: Its origin, era of decline and revival”. The Island (The Island Group). Retrieved 6 October 2010.
- [26] Raj 2006, p. 127
- [27] Gombrich & Obeyesekere 1999, pp. 163–200
- [28] Feddema 1997, pp. 202–222
- [29] Kapferer 1997, p. 51
- [30] Davidson & Gitlitz 2002, p. 309
- [31] Younger 2001, p. 34
- [32] Wirz 1966, pp. 23–25
- [33] Clothey & Ramanujan 1978, p. 38
- [34] Clothey & Ramanujan 1978, p. 39
- [35] Wirz 1966, pp. 26–35
- [36] Wirz 1966, pp. 13–15
- [37] Holt 1991, p. 6
- [38] Clothey & Ramanujan 1978, p. 15
- [39] Klostermaier 2007, p. 251
- [40] Clothey & Ramanujan 1978, pp. 22
- [41] Clothey & Ramanujan 1978, pp. 128–130
- [42] Wirz 1966, pp. 36–45
- [43] Bastin 2002, p. 60
- [44] Gaveshaka (15 August 2004). “The exquisite wood carvings at Embekke”. Sunday Times. Retrieved 5 October 2010.
- [45] Bastin 2002, p. 62
- [46] Younger 2001, pp. 27–31
- [47] Raj 2006, p. 117
- [48] Kandasamy, R (December 1986). “Sri Lanka’s Most Holy Hindu Site becoming a Purely Buddhist Place of Worship? extquotedbl. Hinduism Today (Himalayan Academy). Retrieved 13 September 2010.
- [49] Raj 2006, p. 111
- [50] Gombrich & Obeyesekere 1999, p. 189
- [51] Gombrich & Obeyesekere 1999, p. 165
- [52] Younger 2001, p. 36

- [53] Ramachandran, Nirmala (2004). The Hindu legacy to Sri Lanka. Pannapitiya: Stamford Lake (Pvt.) Ltd. 2004. ISBN 978-955-8733-97-4. OCLC 230674424.
- [54] Hasbullah, S.H.; Morrisson, Barrie M. (2004). Sri Lankan society in an era of globalization: struggling to create a new social order. London: SAGE Publishing. p. 79. ISBN 0-7619-3221-6. OCLC 492978278. ISBN 978-0-7619-3221-5 ISBN 81-7829-350-1 ISBN 978-81-7829-350-9.
- [55] Tambiah 1986, pp. 61–63
- [56] Younger 2001, p. 40

3.8 Cited literature

- Bastin, Rohan (2002), The Domain of Constant Excess: Plural Worship at the Munnesvaram Temples in Sri Lanka, Berghahn Books, ISBN 1-57181-252-0
- Bechert, Heinz (1970). “Skandakumara and Kataragama: An Aspect of the Relation of Hinduism and Buddhism in Sri Lanka”. Proceedings of the Third International Tamil Conference Seminar (Paris: International Association of Tamil Research).
- Clothey, Fred; Ramanujan, A.K. (1978), The many faces of Murukan: the history and meaning of a South Indian god, Mouton de Gruyter, ISBN 0-415-34438-7
- Davidson, Linda Kay; Gitlitz, David Martin (2002), Pilgrimage: From the Ganges to Graceland: An Encyclopedia, University of California, Santa Barbara, ISBN 978-1-57607-004-8
- Feddema, J.P. (Dec 1997). “The cursing practice in Sri Lanka as a religious channel for”. Journal of Asian and African Studies (The Netherlands: E.J. Brill) 32 (3-4): 202–222. doi:10.1177/002190969703200303.
- Gombrich, Richard Francis; Obeyesekere, Gananath (December 1999), Buddhism Transformed: Religious Change in Sri Lanka, Motilal Banarsidass, ISBN 81-208-0702-2
- Gupta, Suman (2010), Globalization in India: Contents and Discontents, Pearson Education South Asia, ISBN 978-81-317-1988-6
- Holt, John (1991), Buddha in the crown: Avalokiteśvara in the Buddhist traditions of Sri Lanka, Oxford University Press, ISBN 0-19-506418-6
- Kepferer, Bruce (1997), The Feast of the Sorcerer: practices of consciousness and power, University of Chicago Press, ISBN 0-226-42413-8
- Klostermaier, Klaus (2007), A survey of Hinduism, State University of New York Press, ISBN 978-0-7914-7081-7
- Paranavitana, Senarath (1933), Epigraphia Zeylanica, Oxford University Press
- Raj, Selva (2006), Dealing with Deities: The Ritual Vow in South Asia, State University of New York, ISBN 0-7914-6707-4
- Reynolds, Craig (2006), Seditious histories: contesting Thai and Southeast Asian pasts, University of Washington Press, ISBN 9971-69-335-6
- Tambiah, Stanley (1986), Sri Lanka : ethnic fratricide and the dismantling of democracy, University of Chicago, ISBN 1-85043-026-8
- Wanasundera, Nanda (2004), Cultures of the world: Sri Lanka, Times Books International, ISBN 0-7614-1477-0
- Wirz, Paul (1966), Kataragama: The holiest place in Ceylon, Lake house publishing house, OCLC 9662399
- Womak, Marie (2005), Symbols and Meaning: A Concise Introduction, Altamira Press, ISBN 0-7591-0322-4
- Younger, Paul (2001), Playing Host to Deity: Festival Religion in the South Indian Tradition, Oxford University Press, ISBN 0-19-514044-3

3.9 See also

- Kartikay
- Kartikkeya

3.10 External links

- The Kataragama-Skanda website
- Pictures of Kataragama
- Embekke Kataragama temple
- On Foot by Faith to Kataragama

3.11 Text and image sources, contributors, and licenses

3.11.1 Text

- Kataragama deviyo Source: http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Kataragama_deviyo?oldid=613247128 Contributors: Kanatonian, Shehanw, R'n'B, SchreiberBike, Addbot, 4twenty42o, Helpful Pixie Bot, K.shayanthan, BattyBot, Faizan and Anonymous: 3
- Kataragama Source: <http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Kataragama?oldid=627302424> Contributors: Soman, Kwamikagami, Anthony Appleyard, Black Falcon, Kanatonian, Cydebot, MER-C, JaGa, Shehanw, Naniwako, Excirial, SchreiberBike, XLinkBot, Addbot, AnomieBOT, Obi2canibe, Sudar123, SriSuren, Rcsprinter123, ClueBot NG, Bhagyapwc, Nillninyone, PhnomPencil, Wiki Police (Sri Lanka Affairs), AntanO, Jeremy112233, Cyberbot II, ChrisGualtieri, All Worlds, Cwobeel, Adbar, Pitchperfect110 and Anonymous: 16
- Kataragama temple Source: http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Kataragama_temple?oldid=627301766 Contributors: Wetman, Lunkwill, Michael Devore, Karol Langner, Bumm13, Szquirrel, Ogress, Anthony Appleyard, RJJJR, Vadakkan, Firsfron, Woohookitty, Tabletop, Aiyana, Dangerous-Boy, SDC, Rjwilmsi, RussBot, Pyrotec, Black Falcon, Nlu, Closedmouth, SinhalaPOWEr, SmackBot, AlbertHerring, A. Parrot, Makyen, Kanatonian, Parakrama, Cydebot, Supermod, Thijs!bot, Barticus88, Krankman, Honeplus, James086, Kataragama, MER-C, Jllm06, The Anomebot2, KConWiki, JaGa, Shehanw, Lifebonzza, Naniwako, MartinBotIII, Redtigeryz, DSGruss, Allebor-goBot, Svm1 63, Plastikspork, Alexbot, SchreiberBike, Uksharma3, Channag, Fyrael, Leszek Jańczuk, Xenobot, Yobot, GOR42, Jim1138, Blackknight12, Obi2canibe, Xqbot, Kapidis, Astronomyinertia, Tamilan101, Plastikspork, Trappist the monk, RjwilmsiBot, John of Reading, Baccy, SporkBot, ClaretAsh, Nillninyone, Helpful Pixie Bot, MediaJet, K.shayanthan, Robert Keiden, All Worlds, Kkvinojkumar, Adbar, Aathavan jaffna and Anonymous: 40

3.11.2 Images

- File:Colombo-Kataragama_Main_Road.jpg Source: http://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/en/b/b6/Colombo-Kataragama_Main_Road.jpg License: ? Contributors: ? Original artist: ?
- File:Commons-logo.svg Source: <http://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/en/4/4a/Commons-logo.svg> License: ? Contributors: ? Original artist: ?
- File:Dharma_Wheel.svg Source: http://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/commons/d/df/Dharma_Wheel.svg License: CC-BY-SA-3.0 Contributors: ? Original artist: ?
- File:Flag-map_of_Sri_Lanka.svg Source: http://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/commons/b/b7/Flag-map_of_Sri_Lanka.svg License: CC-BY-SA-3.0 Contributors: Own work Original artist: Blackknight12
- File:Gold_temple_icon.png Source: http://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/commons/b/bc/Gold_temple_icon.png License: CC-BY-SA-3.0 Contributors: Own work Original artist: Himalayan Explorer based on Paul_012
- File:KarttikeyaWithSpearAndCockYaudheyas.jpg Source: <http://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/commons/7/7e/KarttikeyaWithSpearAndCockYaudheyas.jpg> License: CC-BY-SA-3.0 Contributors: self-made, photographed at the British Museum Original artist: PHGCOM
- File:Kataragama_interior.jpg Source: http://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/commons/9/9c/Kataragama_interior.jpg License: CC-BY-SA-2.0 Contributors: originally posted to Flickr as Making Poya Original artist: Michael Coghlan
- File:Kataragama_path_towards_Kiri_Vehera.jpg Source: http://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/commons/4/41/Kataragama_path_towards_Kiri_Vehera.jpg License: CC-BY-SA-3.0 Contributors: Own work Original artist: Adbar
- File:Kataragama_temple_entrance.jpg Source: http://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/commons/c/c5/Kataragama_temple_entrance.jpg License: CC-BY-SA-3.0 Contributors: Own work Original artist: Adbar
- File:Kiri_Vehera.jpg Source: http://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/en/a/a5/Kiri_Vehera.jpg License: ? Contributors: ? Original artist: ?
- File:MahasenaHuvishka.jpg Source: <http://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/commons/d/de/MahasenaHuvishka.jpg> License: CC-BY-SA-3.0 Contributors: self-made, photographed at the British Museum. Original artist: PHGCOM
- File:Murugan_by_Raja_Ravi_Varma.jpg Source: http://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/commons/8/81/Murugan_by_Raja_Ravi_Varma.jpg License: Public domain Contributors: C. Cunniah & co. Glass Merchants 248-249 Devaraja Mudaly Street Madras.(Ravi Varma Press,Karla Lonavla) Original artist: Raja Ravi Varma
- File:Muttur_padayatra.jpg Source: http://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/commons/1/13/Muttur_padayatra.jpg License: Public domain Contributors: Patrick Harrigan's e-mail me(editor@kataragama.org) Original artist: Patrick Harrigan
- File:Red_pog.svg Source: http://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/en/0/0c/Red_pog.svg License: ? Contributors: ? Original artist: ?
- File:Sri_Lanka_location_map.svg Source: http://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/commons/6/6e/Sri_Lanka_location_map.svg License: CC-BY-SA-3.0 Contributors: Own work Original artist: Uwe Dederig
- File:Symbol_support_vote.svg Source: http://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/en/9/94/Symbol_support_vote.svg License: ? Contributors: ? Original artist: ?
- File:Temple_Interior.jpg Source: http://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/commons/3/32/Temple_Interior.jpg License: CC-BY-SA-2.0 Contributors: originally posted to Flickr as Temple Interior Original artist: Michael Coghlan

3.11.3 Content license

- Creative Commons Attribution-Share Alike 3.0