

How to Feel and Strengthen our Heart by Guiding

About Heart Guiding and How to Feel & Strengthen our Heart

The exercise may seem simplistic, yet it can be profound for both the guide and the subject. The nice feeling that you will be feeling, is the feeling of your heart. The reason that it is profound is because that nice feeling is a direct link to the True Source, the Source of Love and Light. At the beginning level, the nice feeling will be experienced possibly as a sensation of warmth, openness, expansiveness, light, peace, calmness, gentleness, or joy.

When you feel the nice feeling and allow yourself to let go and follow the nice feeling, then it is the feeling itself which will bring you into your heart. At this stage you will be in the outer layer of your heart, and the key to know that you are really there, is that you will be enjoying the nice feeling. If you are not enjoying the nice feeling, then you are not yet in your heart.

Simply relax, and stop trying to feel something, because the process of trying or looking for the nice feeling will block your experience. Any effort or attempt to try is a process of the brain that will keep you in your head instead of in the enjoyment of your heart.

Some people will enjoy the nice feeling in their heart the first time they do this exercise. Others will feel something as soon as they realize that they are trying. Just relax, smile and feel the nice feeling that is already there. Do not do this exercise as an exercise. Do it as an enjoyment, like having fun as a child. If you approach this with seriousness, or as a disciplined meditation technique, you will be less likely to be relaxed and less able to experience the joy from your heart.

How to Feel Our Heart

You can freely download a guided recording from our website about how to feel your heart and another recording on how to strengthen your heart and feeling. Additionally you can ask a friend to guide you to feel your heart by reading the scripts on the pages below starting with Feeling our Heart. Often it is easier to feel and enjoy the experience more if you are guided through the steps slowly with someone who is good at helping you to relax.

Thinking hard just gives your head pressure..

When you think of something seriously for a while you will feel the area in your forehead is heavy or there is a pressure because your brain is working hard.

Remembering a happy moment without smiling..

When you are happy there is a reaction in your chest.

This is your heart reacting when the feeling from the heart is working.

Remembering a happy moment and smiling freely..

When you are smiling freely the feelings from the heart become stronger.

Feeling Our Heart Script for Guides

You can read this script to a friend slowly and clearly with a relaxed and positive manner. After each section and between lines pause for a few seconds to allow your friend some time to fully experience what they are feeling. After reading step 9 you can pause and repeat the steps from 4 to 9 again. This allows your friend to notice the difference between smiling freely / not smiling and how it affects their feelings. The key to feel with our heart is to be relaxed, smiling freely and following our feelings. It may take a few practices to relax enough to clearly notice the differences and to feel our heart more.

1. Sit in a comfortable position with your back straight.. place your palms on your lap facing upwards.. Close your eyes and relax.. Take some time to soften any tension in your body and allow yourself to relax.. and relaxing even more
2. Be here and now completely.. Relax.. keep relaxing....keep relaxing even more... good. Take a breath in and breathe out fully.. relax even more.. completely relaxed..
3. Remember one of your happiest moments that really touched you. It can be any moment.. maybe a time when you felt close to someone or were doing something you enjoyed.
4. Notice how you felt during the happy moment without thinking about the details. When you are happy.. feel the smile coming up.. allow yourself to smile.. follow that feeling.. and stay with that feeling.. relaxing and smiling and nothing else..
5. Feel how natural that is.. remember that feeling.. relaxing and smiling.. being in the feeling of that moment.. allow it to happen without thinking how... smiling and relaxing.. and relaxing even more into the nice feeling... and nothing else..
6. Relax and smile freely.. and keep relaxing and smiling freely.. notice what happens to your feeling as you smile more.. keep on smiling and relaxing into the feeling.. and nothing else..
7. Keep relaxing and smiling.. relaxing even more.. and smiling even more..... keep relaxing and smiling.. and relaxing into the feeling.. and nothing else.. (15 second pause)
8. Stop smiling and keep relaxing.. relaxing even more.. notice how you feel.. keep relaxing and relaxing even more.. and nothing else..
9. Now lets feel the difference.. feel how it is when you smile.. (Repeat three times: steps 4 - 9)
10. You can open your eyes and give yourself a moment to relax.

The person being guided may notice that the nice feeling quickly goes away when they stop smiling. This is because the mind has become more dominant than their heart. Just repeat the key steps of relaxing and smiling to feel the nice feeling again from the heart. Some people may find that as they begin to enjoy smiling, they then find it hard to stop smiling because the nice feeling is so good they just want to continue smiling. We hope from this simple exercise that you experienced and learned that the feeling from the heart is stronger when you are smiling freely.

How to Feel and Strengthen the Heart

You can freely download the Heart Strengthening Exercise as a guided recording from our website or ask a friend to guide you with a script. By sharing the experience you can support and tailor the pace of the guiding to help your friend to feel their heart more easily. The key steps to be able to feel the heart are to (1) relax (2) smile (3) follow the feeling. If the person you are guiding is not smiling freely you may need to encourage them to be more relaxed before asking them to smile more. If they are already relaxed and smiling freely give them encouragement to follow their feeling even more.

How to guide your friend to do Heart Strengthening Exercise

First allow your friend to find a comfortable position they can be relaxed in. Aim to take a minimum of 10 minutes to not rush the guiding and read each part of the script exactly but do not simply read this as a script, instead notice how your friend is doing and reacting and give some supportive comments highlighted in blue and green when needed.

For example, when you feel your friend is enjoying and doing well you can gently give them good feedback and encourage them to continue to feel and enjoy even more by saying a few times one or more of these phrases:

[yes, good, very good, great, wonderful, feeling more, keep following your feeling, follow your feeling even more, relaxing into the feeling, let go, let go more, let go even more].

If your friend is not relaxing, not smiling or not following their feeling just stay on this part of the script for longer by saying a few times one or more of these phrases:

[relax more, relax completely and freely, relax even more, smile, smile freely, smiling even more, follow your feeling, relaxing into the feeling more, letting go, let go even more].

As a guide you can also relax and sometimes close your eyes to more easily follow the feeling and so be more aware when guiding your friend. By closing your eyes and guiding with your feeling you can help your friend so they can feel and strengthen their heart more easily. It is not uncommon for the person doing the guiding to be able to feel more than the person being guided since they are not on the “spot”, and naturally we enjoy and feel happy when we are able to help our friends.

Speak slowly and clearly with a positive relaxed and supportive manner. Follow your feeling as you are guiding to get the best results and enjoy doing the guiding.

Key steps to feel and strengthen the heart when guiding are:

- 1) Relax - Remember to only move on to smiling when they are completely relaxed.
- 2) Smile - Remember to only move on to feeling when the person is able to smile freely.
- 3) Follow your feelings - Remember to keep them smiling and relaxing to be able to follow the feeling. Remind them to continue to follow their feeling to enjoy the experience more.

Helpful Tips and Notes

- Variation 1: Sometimes smiling at your heart can be challenging as we are not used to smiling. If this is a problem then you can guide them to remember a happy moment and start the smiling from that point, allowing the happy feeling to begin their smile. It's important that they let go of the memory once they have the nice feeling or else they will start to daydream and will not be able to follow the feeling.
- Variation 2: As a further addition to the heart strengthening exercise to feel even more you can guide the person to experience the difference by repeatedly asking them to: 1) tense / be relaxed, 2) smile / don't smile to your heart and 3) touch / don't touch move their fingers a few inches away from their heart for a few seconds.
- It is recommended to repeat the exercises a few times and take turns in guiding and giving feedback on how you feel. Sharing the experience helps you learn more about your heart. See our website for tips about the 8 common problems most people have.
- If you and your friend enjoyed heart guiding and strengthening exercises try doing the Open Heart Meditation together which is freely downloadable from our website.
- It's best to have no expectations whilst doing the exercise. If you feel tired stop and do something else and try the heart guiding and strengthening exercise later. Don't push your friend to do more than they want to. It should be an enjoyment.
- Some people notice that as they smile to the heart the special feeling coming from the heart: peace, joy, stillness & calmness cannot be felt with or by the brain.
- If you have just started working with the heart and haven't felt much or nothing yet just relax, smile and follow the feeling and practise regularly to strengthen your heart.
- If you can, try and practice daily for a few minutes or several times in the day to keep strengthening your heart. With some practice this technique becomes deeper and you should begin to feel your heart better and better each day / each week.
- If you feel any pressure around your heart, this indicates that you are feeling the releasing of blockages and old emotions stored within and around your heart as they are being removed. To help speed up the process we recommend you just relax, smile, and follow your feeling even more and do Open Heart Meditation regularly.
- So you can relax more easily: Maintain good posture. Be aware that your head can droop without you realising it. Take glasses off. Tuck your elbows in / keep arms relaxed.
- If you enjoy heart guiding and would like to practice with other people then we recommend that you either join a local Open Heart Meditation group, or login to one of our online meditation groups or attend one of our Open Heart Workshops.

Key Steps to Strengthen our Heart and Feeling

Step 1: Relax your Whole Body

Find a nice and quiet place to sit. You can sit on a chair with your feet firmly on the floor or sit cross legged on the floor, whichever is more relaxing and comfortable.

Sit with your back and spine straight with good posture without forcing or straining yourself. If you need back support then sit on a chair with a flat back or use a cushion to be as comfortable as possible.

Your head should be looking forward and slightly upwards, as it is hard to feel your heart if your head is drooping down and this helps prevent you getting sleepy.

Step 2: Close your Eyes and Smile Freely

Close your eyes. This helps to reduce the domination of your brain and helps you to relax more easily.

Scientifically speaking, it is known that when we open our eyes, our eyes send signals to our brain to process the images which makes our brain work hard. Put aside all thoughts from the day and just be here and now.

Start to smile freely. By smiling freely the feeling from the heart becomes stronger. Stay smiling so you can begin and continue to follow the nice feelings that arise from your heart.

Step 3: Touch your Heart and Smile to your Heart

Touch your heart at the center of your chest with one or two fingers at the level of your armpits to bring your awareness to your heart. This helps your awareness of your heart and connects your whole being to your heart.

Smile to your heart without thinking how.

The best attitude is to not expect anything. If you are too busy wanting or expecting too much then you are busy thinking, instead you should be relaxing and enjoying the feelings that are naturally arising from your heart.

Step 4: Stay Relaxed and Follow your Feeling

Stay relaxed and continue to smile freely to your heart for several minutes. After a while you may feel some expansion and a light and calm feeling around your heart.

Follow and relax into the feeling even if it is very gentle or you can only just feel it a little bit. By following the feeling without any effort your heart and feelings grow stronger and you are able to enjoy the nice feeling from your heart even more.

Stay relaxed and keep smiling to your heart for five minutes.
