Prajapati

For the community known as Prajapati, see Kumhar.

In Hinduism, Prajapati (Sanskrit: प्रजापति (IAST:

An attempt to depict the creative activities of Prajapati, a steel engraving from the 1850s prajā-patī) “lord of creatures” is a group Hindu deity presiding over procreation, and protection of life. Vedic commentators also identify him with the creator referred to in the^[1] Nasadiya Sukta.

1 Prajapati in Vedas

According to later beliefs in the post-Vedic Era, the Prajapatis were elected democratically. Lord Vishnu was first elected democratically/unanimously as Prajapati (in the North of Aryavarta or Bharta) by all the Rishis and subjects of that era and sat on the throne of Prajapati. Thereafter, Lord Brāhma was elected as Prajapati (in the west of Aryavrat or Bharta), after which Lord Shankar (in the South of Aryavrat or Bharta) or Rudras were elected as Prajapatis. The throne of Prajapati succeeded further and there were about 26 Prajapatis, as mentioned in the Vedas.

Prajapati is a Vedic deity presiding over procreation, and the protection of life. He appears as a creator deity or supreme god vishvakarman above the other Vedic deities in RV 10 and in Brahmana literature. Vedic commentators also identify him with the creator referred to in the Nasadiya Sukta.

In later times, he is identified with Vishnu, Shiva, with the personifications of Time, Fire, the Sun, etc. He is also identified with various mythical progenitors, especially (Manu Smṛti 1.34) the ten lords of created beings first created by Brahmā, the Prajapatis Marichi, Atri, Angiras, Pulastya, Pulaha, Kratu, Vasishtha, Prachetas or Daksha, Bhrigu, Nārada.

The Mahabharata mentions, in the words of celestial sage Narada, 14 Prajapatis (lit:caretakers of the Praja) Hiranyagarbha is the source of the creation of the Universe or the manifested cosmos in Indian philosophy, it finds mention in one hymn of the Rigveda (RV 10.121), known as the 'Hiranyagarbha sukta' and presents an important glimpse of the emerging monism, or even monotheism, in the later Vedic period, along with the Nasadiya sukta suggesting a single creator deity predating all other gods (verse 8: yó devésv ádhi devá éka ásit, Griffith: “He is the God of gods, and none beside him.”), in the hymn identified as Prajapati.

The Upanishads calls it the Soul of the Universe or Brahman, and elaborates that Hiranyagarbha floated around in emptiness and the darkness of the non-existence for about a year, and then broke into two halves which formed the Swarga and the Prithvi. In classical Puranic Hinduism, Hiranyagarbha is a name of Brahma, so called because he was born from a golden egg (Manusmṛti 1.9), while the Mahabharata calls it the Manifest.

Śrīmad Bhāgavatam 8.8.16 cites Vishvakarman as the leader of the prajāpatis, the sons of Lord Brahmā who generate progeny.^[2] The eleven lords of created beings first created by Brahmā, which are the Prajapatis:

1. Vishvakarman^[3]
2. Marichi
3. Atri
4. Angiras
5. Pulastya,
6. Pulaha,
7. Kratu,
8. Vasishtha
9. Prachetas or Daksha
10. Bhrigu

The Mahabharata mentions, in the words of celestial sage Narada, 14 Prajapatis (lit:caretakers of the Praja) excluding Vishvakarman namely:

1. Daksha,
2. Prachetas,

3. Pulaha,
4. Marichi,
5. Kasyapa,
6. Bhrigu,
7. Atri,
8. Vasistha,
9. Gautama,
10. Angiras,
11. Pulastya,
12. Kratu,
13. Prahlada and
14. Kardama

They are the caretakers of the fourteen worlds - seven lokas and seven talas.^[4]

2 Origin of Prajapatis

The Prajapati community come brahmana warriors are seen as the descendants of Prajapati ; Lord Brahmā, Lord Vishnu, Lord Shiva and Maharaj Manu are considered Prajapatis. Prajapati also means protector & preserver (King).

The Mahabharata translated by Kisari Mohan Ganguli (1883-1896), Book 2: Sabha Parva: Lokapala Sabhahayana Parva, section:XI. p. 25 And Daksha, Prachetas, Pulaha, Marichi, the master Kasyapa, Bhrigu, Atri, and Vasistha and Gautama, and also Angiras, and Pulastya, Kraut, Prahlada, and Kardama, these Prajapatis, and Angirasa of the Atharvan Veda, the Valikhilyas, the Marichipas; Intelligence, Space, Knowledge, Air, Heat, Water, Earth, Sound, Touch, Form, Taste, Scent; Nature, and the Modes (of Nature), and the elemental and prime causes of the world,--all stay in that mansion beside the lord Brahma. And Agastya of great energy, and Markandeya, of great ascetic power, and Jamadagni and Bharadwaja, and Samvarta, and Chyavana, and exalted Durvasa, and the virtuous Rishyasringa, the illustrious 'Sanatkumara' of great ascetic merit and the preceptor in all matters affecting Yoga...

3 Possible equivalent

A possible connection between Prajapati (and related figures in Indian tradition) and the Prōtogenos (Greek: Πρωτογόνοϛ) of the Greek Orphic tradition has been made by several scholars.^{[5][6]}

It has been argued that the name of /PRA-JĀ[N]-pati/ ('progeny-potentate') is etymologically equivalent to that of the oracular god at Kolophōn (according to Makrobios^[7]), namely /prōtogenos/.

According to Damascius, Prōtogenos (also known as Phanēs) had four heads, those of “a Serpent (Drakōn)... and a bull; a man, and a god,”^[8] while in the Brahmāṇḍa Purāṇa Brahmā - identified with Prajapati in several texts - is likewise reckoned as 4-headed [one head each having produced deva-s (gods), ṛṣi-s (sages), pitṛ-s (ancestors), and nara-s (humans)].^[9]
