Ramtha

Ramtha was from Lemuria. As a Lemurian he was one of a highly spiritual people. At the age of 14, he became a conqueror who freed his people from Atlantean tyranny. Ramtha became the greatest of all warriors. Over the course of 63 years, he conquered two-thirds of the then-known world. Traces of this march can be found in the remnants of ancient traditions: the great warrior was later to become "Rama" of the Hindu religion, the first god of the people of India. Late in his march, he was the recipient of a brutal assassination attempt. During his seven-year recovery process, he learned the mysteries of the unknown god and became enlightened. As a result of his enlightenment, he ascended in front of his people, promising his return.
