The Scientific Facts Behind 2012 and Death of the Egoic Materialistic Mind

Report this blog

Most of us know that the Earth has a magnetic field. A Scientist called Carl Friedrich Gauss, discovered back in 1935 that the earth's magnetic field was dying, and Scientists today also confirm that it is indeed declining, and at a rapid rate.

As the earth's molten core is rotating; the magnetic field is created. This magnetic field has been weakening dramatically over the last ten years.... in physics there is a parameter called "Schumann's Resonance". Using that, mathematicians can determine the strength of the earth's magnetic field. While for many centuries, it was constant around 7.80 cycles per second, during the last 7-8 years, it has risen to 11 cycles per second and is continuing to increase dramatically, and probably another reason why some of us feel like "time" is speeding up. So the clever mathematicians have calculated that by the year 2012, the "Schuman's Resonance" is likely to be 13 cycles per second. When this resonance is 13 cycles per second, the earth's core would stop rotating with the magnetic field gone. So "sometime" in the year 2012, it will become zero for a few days, after that the core will start rotating again, and according to certain Scientists, will rotate in the opposite direction, a shifting of the poles. The study of fossil records has shown that this happens roughly every 11.000 years, so it's happened before, no biggie, and Scientists are sure that life on earth will survive, no cause for alarm. Please do your own research on this phenomenon, it is a fact, and it will happen.

As we know, most animals and insects use the earth's magnetic field to navigate, it's like and internal compass. May explain why the whales have been beaching themselves a lot more often over the last decade. Scientist recently discovered through the study of butterflies that humans also have an internal compass.. but I've know this for years, I knew that I had good sense of direction and an internal compass, when I travelled alone to countries with cities of 20+million people, and could navigate my way around without so much as a map or English speaking assistance and not get lost. We have probably all tested that theory in some way or another.

So what does this have to do with our minds, and how will this complete loss of earth's magnetic field affect all life on our planet? Good question, and one I'm sure many will have their own thoughts and ideas about. And I'm keen to hear your perspective on this subject.

What we know for sure is, our planets magnetic field has been declining for a while, and it's only now gone into overdrive where is will come to a screaming halt at some time next year. But I'm an optimist, and also a sensitive, and as much as that is painful and annoying at times, I'm blessed to be so. On a personal level, the last few months I've felt slight dizziness, a loss of physical direction, and a type of confusion when I go somewhere, and have to use landmarks to find my way, instead of using my internal compass.. so I'm adjusting to the shift, and having this knowledge helps me understand on a deeper level how I'm so closely connected the everything.

Some Spiritual beliefs say that when the magnetic field is gone, the mind dies.. in the Dharma, they say "mind is karma", in other words, the mind creates karma. The Dharma believe that all actions start from the mind (ego) The mind is a storehouse of current karma (samskaras) and past life karma (vasanas) from which all action emanates, so when the magnetic field on earth dies in 2012, humanity will have their karma debt of the past 11,000 years cleared. Maybe this is the real significance of 2012!

I see it as, the ego creates karma, therefore, the ego will die, moreover, the need for materialistic wants will die. A new age will be upon humanity, once the ego is dead, there is no reviving it. Ouch!! That's going to hurt the corporate fat cats and walking dead. So, what can we do to make the shift easier?

The Universe, God Creator, or whichever term you prefer to use, is a wonderful thing, and we've all been given help and opportunities every step along the way. We also have freedom of will and free choice, so not everyone will be drawn to go with the flow of change. The energies of the past few years, that most of us have felt, has been a calling to action, a search for the truth from within, and although you may think that the energies from our Earth (Gaia) and the cosmos is external, they are not, they are part of us, and that's why I feel them so keenly, and my intuition tells me what I should do, as I'm sure it does for you too.

So with these powerful energies, comes lots of emotions rising to the surface, in short, we've all been given an opportunity or the choice to clear old karma debt, I know in just the last few months, weeks and days I've had some emotions come up from my childhood, and even emotional trauma I didn't know I had, that must be from a past life experience, that I've needed to clear. I acknowledge these emotions and feelings, let them flow over me, and then release them, and stay in the moment, it's not complicated, it really is that simple to clear your karma. It is however, quite draining, and I'm mindful to take care of myself and rest when my body tells me to do so.

I truly believe that stilling the mind with meditation and yoga techniques is very beneficial, when there are no thoughts or egoic mind chatter, you can reconnect with everything and become oneness. With practice, mind chatter disappears, which means you are getting used to a functioning mind with no ego, no ego when the earth's magnetic field dies will result in a smooth ride on the roller coaster. And we all want that, at least I know I do.

Blessings, Love and Light ((♥))

Paul brown Rebekah, I have read your blog. I don't think the Earths magnetic field will reverse polarity for some time. It is very difficult to interlectualise what we feel(for the want of a better word)spiritually. I too have picked up disturbance, I am sure it is not only due to the earths magnetic field, th...

Pat Dunn Very good blog Reb, thanks 😊🙏 There are so many belief systems, as said in comments, much more at play, but you hit the nail on the head that 12/12/12 is more about raising the vibration of humanity than anything else. All of the Divine is here to help, our part is to clear our "stuff" and go with t...
