Yahoel (Hebrew יְהוֹאֵל, also spelled Jehoel in some English texts, and Yaoel in French sources) is the name of an angel appearing in the Old Church Slavonic manuscripts of the Apocalypse of Abraham, a pseudepigraphical work dating from after the Siege of Jerusalem (70).<sup>[1]</sup> He is an associate of the archangel Michael (Apoc.Abr.10:17) charged to restrain Leviathan and destroy idolaters (10:10-14).<sup>[2]</sup>

Another later pseudepigraphical rabbinical work ascribed to Ishmael ben Elisha, Hebrew 3 Enoch 48d, gives Yahoel as one of the 70 names of Metatron, which makes sense in light of the character and role of Yahoel in Apocalypse of Abraham.<sup>[3]</sup>

In the 13th Century kabbalistic Berith Menucha of Abraham Merimón of Granada Yahoel is the angel over fire.

Several popular dictionaries of angels, such as Gustav Davidson A dictionary of angels: including the fallen angels (1967) repeat the claim that Jehoel was (in unidentified Jewish texts) the chief angel of the Seraphim. No source for this claim is forthcoming.

Jehoel (Jahoel, Jaobel, or Yahoel): Jehoel is an Angel of the Presence, member of the Sarim, and ruler of the order of Seraphim. According to the Apocalypse of Abraham, Jehoel took Abraham on a tour of Heaven and ultimately took him to meet God. He is described as wearing purple robes and a rainbow-colored turban. His hair is white and his skin like sapphire. In Jewish legend, Jehoel leads the choirs that ceaselessly sing God's praises. Consequently, he holds a higher position than the other three choirmasters in Heaven: Asaph, Heman, and Jeduthun. Jehoel is happy to help musicians, especially singers.

Joel (Jael, Jehoel, Yahoel, Jah-el, etc.) – in The Book of Adam and Eve, a pseudepigraphic work, Joel is the archangel who allotted our first parents a 7th part of the earthly paradise. Joel is also credited with being the angel who bade Adam name all things, an incident related in Genesis 2:19-20 (where it is God himself that appoints Adam to the task). Joel (or Yahoel) is the 1st of Metatron's names. In Conybeare, The Testament of Solomon, the female demon Onoskelis, on being interrogated by Solomon, declared she was subject to Joel.
